Shoot! Its a great piece. Alaskans need to be reminded of all the pts you were making.

I just taped this week's AGIA update - maybe next wk we can tape one together, or just you alone. I know Alaskans want to hear more of your perspective on the issue. We could turn your op ed into the weekly briefing. Your pts re: private sector project needs to be heard.

The ADN spoke with Kate today and told her they didn't know when they would schedule my Compass piece to run or if they would. They did the "We're so backed up from the election…" routine. Not a good sign.

Oh my goodness Meg - bless your heart, and Isabella's too. I'm so sorry you had to spend your time like that!

Thank you for the fruitful outcome tho. AH has not been willing, at all, to hear truths about AGIA, up 'til now. Let's take him up on that offer, gasline team, the sooner the better We may not sway him at all, as I'm sure he gets an earful from his BP-employed bro-in-law, but let's do it anyway.

You're a trooper Meg. Thank you from all of us.

I just got off the plane with Kevin Banks and two other gasline folks. They are stoked - said they had a GREAT day with legislators today!

Subject: Andrew Halcro

After nearly tossing myself off the top of the Atwood, Andrew Halcro and I just completed a one-plus hour phone conversation - first, we spoke about the leak that he and the Governor discussed a job during the administration and perhaps his anti-AGIA rants are related to the fact that he didn't get the job. I reiterated the fact that this Administration had absolutely nothing to do with the leak (in case anyone caught talk radio today). Secondly, I discussed aspects of the AGIA and expressed my disappointment in him that he did not take up the gasline team on the opportunity to have an informational meeting to ask questions and discuss the merits of AGIA. We ended the conversation quite cordially and now he would love to take us up on the original offer of meeting with the team regarding the AGIA and his concerns that we've not taken some things into consideration, especially in our cash modeling, etc. At this point, just filling everyone in, but would like to know what opportunities may exist for this conversation to take place.

Thanks so much,

Meg

Dear Governor Palin:

We where excited to see you elected as you had promised to be fair with commerical fishing interest.

However, your apointment of Howard Delo from the valley is not fair and upsets the balance of the broad.

This would further harm our livelihood.

All we are asking is fairness on your part.

Sincerely,

Willie & Jennie Porter

MESSAGE:

I have worked in the corrosion control industry for 33 years. From Industrial water treatment applications in major food processing plants across the midwest to fossil fuel and nuclear power plants and in the oil and gas industry. I have lived and worked in Alaska since the spring of 1989. My interest is in the comments heard on the radio this AM regarding a "new" board or commission concerning corrosion control in Alaska's oil & gas industry. My concern is that the individuals selected for the board/commission may or may not have the technical ability to evaluate the producers efforts in corrosion control. Or a better veiw would to say that the individuals may not challenge the producers plans or efforts as they have historically have only done what has been absolutely necessary to chemically treat the internals of their systems or provide cathodic protection where necessary to prevent external corrosion. I have long called this the "politics of corrosion control". Understa! nding that we live in a competitive world, venders have long been beat down on pricing and margins to the point that R & D efforts are bing limited and finding good people and paying them competitive salaries has become difficult. Richard Woollam with BP to name one was instrumental in part of the process of driving many competent businesses out of the state. You can see where that has led. Commisions are fine as long as they aren't duplications of efforts and that they truly serve a need.

Subject: Glenallen Talking Points

Governor Palin,

Here are a few things I put together for Glenallen. What's key is there is one board member from Glenallen—something we are actively working to change. Also, Ken Johns has applied for PFD Corporation, incase that comes up. I left hard copies with Kari to provide you.

I'm in Wasilla this weekend if you want me to meet you up there and give a B&C pitch in Glenallen.

Thanks,

Bitney came by this morning to talk about the fish boards. He thought Privileged or P being appointed would settle a lot of the resentment in Homer right now. He said he would follow up with you.
